John Guandolo

Founder

Understanding the Threat

Winning The War At the Local Level

John Guandolo served as an officer in the United States Marine Corp in combat operations with infantry & reconnaissance units before entering the FBI. During his 13 years with the FBI, he developed their first counterterrorism program before being recruited to the Department of Defense where he continued his strategic analysis of terrorist movements within the United States of America.

Today, John's focus has shifted to the civilian world where he trains citizens, local leaders and law enforcement to identify and purge threats in their communities. By fortifying counties in this way, John believes patriots can reclaim their states.

REGISTER NOW and secure your spot for the March Awake & Engage event featuring John Guandolo as he discusses "Winning the War at the Local Level!".
